

This is a personal story of one extraordinary normal family life. Life that was interrupted by drug traffickers and racism. This story is told by personal experiences of the narrator. How drug traffickers silenced him giving him an option to face death instead. Option became reality when drug traffickers injected him later with deadly virus disease. In Scandinavia racism in the society is as deep and certain as death itself. This is a personal story demonstrating how drug traffickers have become more powerful than police and law enforcement. This story has been officially reported and documented to police and law enforcement officers.
