

Aria Wesrick just wanted to wallow in her own self-pity this summer. She didn't want her parents to force her to befriend the new neighbors and she definitely didn't want to focus on the post-pubescent changes her body seemed to be undergoing. But most importantly, Aria didn't want to die just a couple of days before she turned seventeen. Re-birthed into a life of angels and demons, Aria must now spend her summer coming to terms with her new title: a human/angel half-breed sent to protect the Earth's elements. With the help of her new neighbors, Aria must defeat a breed of demons sent specifically to destroy the element of earth and any half-breeds that try to intervene. The only issue is that half-breeds have been fighting these demons for over a millennium now, and each battle has ended in half-breed death. With fear constantly begging for Aria's attention, she must remember why she was chosen for this new life. Through her displays of strength and bravery, Aria proves what everyone around her has known since the beginning: she is Elemental.
