

Robin Kirk was an exceptional osteopath, both as a clinician and as a teacher. He was the principal of the London School of Osteopathy from 2000 until he passed away in 2014. This volume gathers together his editorials and columns for the British Osteopathic Journal and his editorials for Osteopathy Today. It also includes a biographical sketch, and personal reflections by friends, colleagues and students. Together these amount to a fascinating portrait of a remarkable individual.
