

This is the autobiography of Rev. Robert H. King, former first vice president of the LCMS. Dr. King grew up in the segregated South, attended Alabama Lutheran Academy in Selma; Immanuel Lutheran College and Seminary in Greensboro, N.C.; pastored several churches in the Midwest; received his doctorate from Indiana University; taught at Concordia University, River Forest, Ill.; and served as guest lecturer at both LCMS seminaries. This fascinating story tells of a dynamic church leader who succeeded despite the abject poverty of his childhood, a nearly fatal illness, and a discriminating society.
